Keeping the Infant in Mind

Integrating Reflective Function into Service for Infants, Young Children, and Their Families

TRAINING INFORMATION

Reflective Function refers to one's capacity and efforts to understand the meaning of our own, or our infant/very young child's, thoughts, feelings, and reactions. Also referred to as "mentalization," the ability to "keep the baby in mind" helps caregivers respond more calmly and sensitively to their child's emotional needs. Over time, it can build a stronger emotional bond and help children learn to understand their own feelings too.

This workshop, facilitated by Dr. Robert Gallen, will introduce infant and early childhood providers to theoretical aspects of mentalization and provide examples and resources for enhancing caregiver reflective function into their practice.

TARGET AUDIENCE

This training is intended for Early Intervention professionals who work with infants or young children and their families. Continuing Professional Development Units (CPDUs) are provided for EISCs, EISC Supervisors, DSs, and Social Workers.
